Course Overview

The Nursing & Midwifery Council (NMC) are making large scale changes to the revalidation process and nurses and midwives are expected to be preparing for them now.

The new criteria will be much more extensive and is set to include increased expectations around appraisals and professional development. Revalidation will impose significant challenges on both individuals and organisations, so it is essential that health and social care providers plan for the new criteria.

This A Practical Guide to Nurse Revalidation course will provide delegates with a comprehensive understanding of the new requirements. Through interactive sessions and practical workshops those in attendance will work to ensure that they have the right processes in place to effectively prepare their staff for revalidation.

Key Training Objectives:

- Understand the new nursing and midwifery revalidation process;
- Identify the key challenges in a simple, step-by-step manner;
- Examine the new expectations regarding CPD, appraisals and reflection;
- Enable your staff to adapt to the new criteria;
- Determine the balance between organisational and individual responsibilities.
